

Intune Programme - The programme is based on the idea of combining mentoring and music, giving young people two outlets to be able to address the issues they are facing.

Each two hour session is broken down so that the young person, initially engages with their designated mentor for the first hour of the session followed by participation with the professional sound engineer who can assist the young people to produce and create their own music as an additional outlet.

The mentor will then assign a task for the young person to work on within the music session, for example what does life in the future look like. This then allows the young person to engage and combine their reflection through music. The personal developments and music creation are both Accredited through Asdan.
