

Fix your crown is based on reflection, positive re-enforcement and pro-social choices, the title of the project being fix your crown, is used as a metaphor to encourage a positive vision of and for young people to strive for better for themselves.

The idea is that leaders wear crowns, and the activities they are involved in are making their crowns lean so we want to help them fix it, creating young leaders who have the power to enforce positive change to their lives which in turn will affect others around them, making them a positive leader with a straight crown.

Jonah's Project CIC will accept referrals for young people who are convicted, involved or at risk of criminal activity from professionals, friends/relatives and self-referrals.

The service will be tailored to meet the individual needs of the young person, this will be deemed by initial assessments and regular reviews.

We take a holistic approach to working with young people and offer the relevant support, case management and guidance to reach the desired jointly decided goal
